

At EY we are committed to helping you achieve your career goals and to bringing out the best in you. We would like to introduce to you a number of people who will be very important to you, both in helping you during your first few days and weeks with EY as well as in guiding your overall career development.

Please save this information to have with you on your first day of work.

Key Contact	Role Description	Contact Info
Peer Advisor/Buddy	A Peer Advisor/Buddy is someone usually of your same role or rank, who has recently joined EY and completed the onboarding process. Their job is to show you the ropes, to introduce you to others in your office, answer your questions and make you feel welcome. You should expect to hear from them during your first week.
Counselor	Your Counselor has formal responsibility for your overall learning and career planning. This includes making sure you are actively engaged in the firm's performance management process. Your Counselor may be your line manager or another person who serves in this role for several counselees. Counselors are important to your development as they help you identify and meet your goals.
Talent Consultant	Your Talent Consultant is your primary point of contact for any performance and employee relations support and/or concerns. In addition, your Talent Consultant is there to assist you with your transition into the firm.	Kimberly Pryor +1 312 879 3712 Kimberly.Pryor@ey.com
